

As American as Apple Pie

Creating a Full-fledged Partnership

Whether in a voting booth, in a court of law or on the job, the right to representation is as American as apple pie.

With representation at Delta, we'll be equal partners with Delta executives. We have the right to sit down and bargain a legally binding contract that gives us the industry-leading pay, benefits and working conditions worthy of the world-class safety and service we provide the traveling public.

We'll Have Each Other's Backs

With a legally binding contract, we'll also have the right to representation when we're required to meet with management. In other words, voting for representation means we'll never have to go it alone if we don't want to, especially when questions of performance are on the line.

That's the kind of full-fledged partnership that will make the Delta workplace the cooperative environment worthy of a world-class airline. Working together, our company is better.
