

Who Do You Believe?

Do you believe the new executives at Delta Air Lines, who are promising the moon but leave a record of failure in their wakes at Eastern Airlines, Pan Am, Continental, and even Northwest Airlines?

Or do you believe the flight attendants at Delta and Northwest, who are working together to represent our interests to Delta executives, to airline regulators and to members of Congress?

Who Cares About Flight Attendants?

Is it the Delta executives who are intent on cutting costs at the airline, even as they pad their stock options and expense accounts? Richard Anderson, Ed Bastion and Mike Campbell made millions dumping their stock when the merger was announced – on top of their big executive compensation packages.

Or is it the flight attendants at Delta and Northwest who have been working harder for less over the past seven years, helping their carriers survive even as they have struggled to make ends meet in the face of slashed pay and benefits?

Beware of the Delta 'Sweet Talk'

What matters most is what's in your best interests. That's why listening to your co-workers at Delta and Northwest makes sense. Let's talk about what's important to our futures. We hold the power in our hands.
