

Opportunity at Delta

“I can see a future where there’s tremendous opportunity for everyone.”

—Marianne Bicksler, 23 years

The ruling by the National Mediation Board on more democratic voting procedures moves us closer to a new world of opportunity for flight attendants.

New places to see. New friends to work with. New aircraft. The adventure of being among more than 20,000 world-class flight attendants, the largest group in the industry.

It’s also a chance for our group – for the first time ever – to have a legally binding contract that gives us a voice in bargaining industry-leading pay.

For many joining Delta from Northwest, the opportunity to work together produced legally binding contracts that gave them a measure of security they now hope to keep.

Working together to win a contract is an opportunity that’s giving many long-time Delta flight attendants hope after years of unilateral changes by the company.

“It’s exciting. I’m going to have a contract after years of no contract. I’m very excited about that.”

—Kay Thomas, 35 years
