

'AFA Won't Deliver a Good Contract'

Our "No Way" friends and colleagues echo Delta executives in making attacks on AFA, charging that it is a third party that will get in the way of our relations with our company. But Delta AFA is us, and we are the ones who will negotiate an industry-leading contract.

If all the things they say about AFA were true, why have so many flight attendants joined the union? Just this past year, AFA gained members from four different airlines. And members struggling with intransigent managements at United and US Airways are overwhelmingly standing together under the AFA banner.

Together, We Win

But our situation at Delta is different from those at United or US Airways. We're building something unique and powerful, a League of Our Own! We're eager to work together with the company and show the Delta Difference!

It's up to the company to work with us, to negotiate a contract that benefits both flight attendants and the company, the way they did with the pilots. All we need is representation to make it happen.

So, there are really only two choices to decide in this election. Do we want to have a voice and a contract like the pilots? Or don't we?

The choice is clear!

VOTE DeltaAFA Representation
Opportunity. Unity. Respect.
