

The Ultimate Insurance Policy

Steady Value in Changing Times

When's the next merger? Who's our next new CEO? Who can tell? One thing's for certain, though. A legally binding contract protects our rights, no matter what.

That's one of many reasons that representation is valuable for Delta flight attendants – it provides protections we otherwise would have to work without in our industry's rapidly changing world of mergers and acquisitions.

Delta-Northwest Merger
Nearly Complete

Continental and United to Tie the Knot

Which Carriers are Likely
Partners for IIS Airways?

An Airline Merger
Too Big To Fail?

Contract Law Protects Us

With representation, we will have the force of law behind the contract agreement we reach with management and approve by a democratic vote of our members.

In other words, no merger, sale or new management team can change on a whim the industry-leading pay, benefits and working conditions that we negotiate. Wouldn't that sort of security in our workplace provide peace of mind?

VOTE DeltaAFA Representation
Opportunity. Unity. Respect.